Speaking Independent Tasks 口语独立题➤ Task 1*[Question]

Some people think that the graduate students should be allowed to teach undergraduate students entry level classes relevant to their own majors. Others believe that the graduate students should only work as the professors' assistants and help do research and grade homework instead of teaching classes. Which one do you agree with? Please explain why in details and examples.

[Response]

I think it's okay for graduate students to help the teacher, but I don't think it's okay for them to actually teach the class.

The first reason I think this is that just because they know a subject doesn't mean they know how to teach the subject. For example, I have a friend who is a really good guitar player but he tried to teach me how to play guitar and he just didn't understand the skills necessary for teaching a skill to someone. So it just became a very frustrating experience for us both, and I didn't learn how to play guitar.

The second reason that I think that they should not be teaching the class is because they don't have practical experience in the field yet. I want teachers who have years of experience in the field.

Writing Independent Task 写作独立题

[Question]

Do you agree or disagree with the following statement?

Movies and television programs should present stories where good people are rewarded and bad people are punished.

[Response]

We've all seen this movie a million times: life is good in a city, then a bad guy starts doing terrible things, life in the city is horrible, the good guy shows up to defeat him, and finally life in the city is good again. Many people believe that this is how movies have to work, but I disagree. I think that it's okay for movies to experiment with other kinds of stories, and even to let the bad guy win sometimes.

First off, the good guy in a movie doesn't always have to win because that's not how life works. Sometimes stories are just entertainment, but they also show us what life is like from another person's perspective. The good guys don't always win in real life, and so they shouldn't always win in the movies either. There are stories in the news every day about bad guys that got away., but For example, one report that I remember well is about the Panama Papers, where reporters learned that rich people in almost every country are hiding their money so they don't have to pay any taxes. Some of these rich people were punished, but nothing happened to most of them, and they're still doing it today. Movies reflect life, and sometimes in life the bad guys win.

Furthermore, it's okay to let the good guys fail in movies sometimes because it might make a more interesting story. It creates a different sort of feeling when a movie has a happy ending or an unhappy ending, so it should be the director's artistic choice about how they want to make the audience feel at the end of the movie. I think a lot of suspenseful movies like to use endings where the bad guys win. The movie called Se7en is a great example. One of the reasons it's such a memorable movie is because of its ending, and that wouldn't have happened if they used the normal formula for how people expect movies to work. Sometimes, letting the bad guy win simply makes for a more interesting movie.

In the end, there's no reason to tell film makers that they have to let the good guys win. That doesn't reflect real life, and it doesn't make the most interesting art. Instead, we should let artists be artists so they are free to create the best pieces they can.

实用句型

1. That wouldn't have happened if they used the normal formula for how people expect movies to work.

“That wouldn't have happened if they did...” 这是经典的虚拟语气句式，表示与过去事实相反，意思是如果他们...，那就不会发生了。

2. For example, one report that I remember well is about the Panama Papers, where reporters learned that rich people in almost every country are hiding their money so they don't have to pay any taxes.

“For example, one report that I remember well is about ... , where reporters learned that ... ” 是用来引出例子的一个非常好的表达。意思是：例如，我记得的一份报告是关于巴拿马文件的，文件里报道者得知了…。这个句式中的我们可以把 report 换成 article 等，reporter 换成 readers 就化用了这一句式为自己所用。

作者先用 topic sentence 给出了分论点，因为生活不总是善有善报，恶有恶报的。然后给出了解释，既然生活是这样，那么故事里也不一定好人有好报。接着给了
